Trihydro Corporation, a Laramie, WY-based Engineering and Environmental Consultant Announces Management Change

LARAMIE, WY, June 14, 2004... Trihydro Corporation – a proven provider of specialized engineering and environmental services – announced today a transition plan in which Henry R. Richter would step down as President. Mr. Richter, a co-founder of the company in 1984, has served as President since 1995. Personal and family obligations were listed as his reasons for stepping down. “This was not a sudden decision,” said Richter. “I have worked closely with the Board of Directors to achieve a mutually acceptable transition strategy that places first and foremost the interests of the company and its staff.” The leadership transition was timed to coincide with the move of Trihydro into its new corporate headquarters and the launch of the company’s “new era of services” campaign.

Richter will remain with the company for an unspecified period of time. He will continue to provide direction and leadership to Trihydro as Chairman of the Board of Directors and will head up a special initiatives task force.

At a company-wide meeting held this morning, Richter announced that Jack G. Bedessem will serve as the new President of Trihydro effective today. Mr. Bedessem joined the firm in 1989 and has been a member of the ownership team since 1995. Mr. Bedessem served in a variety of roles leading up to his appointment as President, including Vice President of Engineering, Executive Vice President, Chief Financial Officer, and Chairman of Board. In accepting the key to the new building from Richter, Bedessem borrowed a line from former President Ronald Reagan stating, “For Trihydro, the best is yet to come.”

Other key senior management appointments announced today include Keith M. Marcott as Senior Vice President, Jeffery Hostetler as Chief Information Officer, Calvin Niss as Vice President and Corporate Secretary, and Deby Forry as Chief Financial Officer and Vice President of Risk Management. Marcott will also continue as Vice President of Marketing and Business Development.
