Trihydro Teams With Partners in Progress

LARAMIE, WY, April 18, 2005...Trihydro Corporation, a professional environmental and engineering consulting firm, has committed to supporting the Laramie Economic Development Commission's "Partners in Progress" program. Partners in Progress is a partnership between city and county government, the University of Wyoming, businesses and individuals in the City of Laramie and Albany County communities. The program goals are to create 800 new jobs, increase capital investment in the City of Laramie and Albany County by more than $60 million, and increase the per capita income by 20 percent. In addition, Partners in Progress wants to accomplish each of these objectives by 2010.

"Trihydro is very pleased and proud to support the LEDC Partners in Progress program," states Jack Bedessem, President of Trihydro. "Trihydro's support of Partners in Progress is our way of demonstrating our commitment and confidence in the future of Laramie. Laramie and Albany County have such tremendous potential and it's on the verge of becoming an even greater place for our employees to live and operate our business. We believe Partners in Progress will help make this happen."
